Venice and Its Musical Identity

Summer 2017

Instructor: Giuseppe Gerbino (gg2024@columbia.edu)
Course level: 3xxx – 3 points

Course Description

Throughout its history, Venice cultivated an idealized image of its political and civic identity. Music played a central role in the construction of the myth of the “Most Serene Republic” both through the prestige of the Venetian music establishment and as a symbol of social harmony and cohesion. This course explores the history of this unique bond between Venice and its musical self-fashioning.

The historical scope of the class includes key moments in the cultural life of Venice and its musical institutions: the development of polychorality in the architectural space of St. Mark’s Basilica; the opening of the first public opera houses and the commercialization of opera; the phenomenon of musical tourism, which attracted international visitors as early as the 17th century; the establishment of the music printing industry; and the cloistered virtuosity of the women musicians of the “conservatories.” The last part of the syllabus is devoted to the political legacy of Venice in 19th-century opera as well as to the construction of a nostalgic image of the city’s past musical splendor in twentieth-century music. Rather than following a strict chronological order, the syllabus is meant to reflect the topographical organization of Venetian society along the lines of the six sestieri and their musical venues, from the St. Mark’s Basilica, opera theaters, and aristocratic academies, to the charitable organizations known as scuole grandi, and the trade guilds for foreign communities (fondachi).

Bulletin description

Throughout its history, Venice cultivated an idealized image of its political and civic identity. Music played a central role in the construction of the myth of the “Most Serene Republic” both through the prestige of the Venetian music establishment and as a symbol of social harmony and cohesion. This course explores the history of this unique bond between Venice and its musical self-fashioning as well as the construction of a nostalgic image of Venice’s past musical splendor in nineteenth- and twentieth-century music.

Weekly schedule

The class will meet twice a week for 3 hours each day, for a total of six weeks.

Course Requirements

This course will be run as an undergraduate seminar. Students are expected to attend regularly and to participate actively (final grades will be penalized for unexcused absences). Students will take turns in leading class discussions. Class participation and presentations will account for 30% of the final grade. Students will also have to take a final exam (20%) and complete two essays (25% each) on a choice of assigned topics related to class discussion. Students will be required to attend two concerts outside class time. Guided visits to historical sites relevant to the course will be organized during class time.
Statement on Academic Integrity

The intellectual venture in which we are all engaged requires of faculty and students alike the highest level of personal and academic integrity. As members of an academic community, each one of us bears the responsibility to participate in scholarly discourse and research in a manner characterized by intellectual honesty and scholarly integrity.

Scholarship, by its very nature, is an iterative process, with ideas and insights building one upon the other. Collaborative scholarship requires the study of other scholars' work, the free discussion of such work, and the explicit acknowledgement of those ideas in any work that inform our own. This exchange of ideas relies upon a mutual trust that sources, opinions, facts, and insights will be properly noted and carefully credited.

In practical terms, this means that, as students, you must be responsible for the full citations of others’ ideas in all of your research papers and projects; you must be scrupulously honest when taking your examinations; you must always submit your own work and not that of another student, scholar, or internet agent.

Any breach of this intellectual responsibility is a breach of faith with the rest of our academic community. It undermines our shared intellectual culture, and it cannot be tolerated. Students failing to meet these responsibilities should anticipate being asked to leave Columbia.

Syllabus

Week 1

Class 1: Venice and Its Musical Myths

Class 2: Patrons and Academies

M. Feldman, City Culture and the Madrigal at Venice (Berkeley: University of California Press, 1995), 3-24, and 84-121.

Week 2

Class 1: Music and Architecture

Class 2: Composing and Singing in St. Mark’s Basilica

Week 3

Class 1: Opera Goes Public: The Serenissima on Stage

Class 2: The Business of Opera

Week 4

Class 1: Venice, Libertines, and Roman History

Class 2: Vis comica

Week 5

Class 1: Cloistered Virtuosity

Class 2: The Red Priest

Week 6

Class 1: The Singing Doge

Class 2: Death in Venice
